DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-26 are pending in this application.

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-16 in Paper No. 8 is acknowledged.

Claims 17-26 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102-103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over O'Brien et al. (6,245,435). O'Brien discloses a method of depositing a decorative coating onto an article such as shower heads with the expressed purpose of resisting corrosion and abrasion (col.1 lines 5-11). The substrate can be zinc and the coating technique used is PVD (col.2 lines 21-24). The coating material is ZrN (lines 56-66). In addition, the reference teaches of precleaning the substrate prior to deposition (col.5 lines 41-46). The deposition pressure can be  $10^{-3}$  to  $10^{-2}$  millibar (lines 41-42). However, the reference remains silent on depositing a film onto a portion of the substrate.

It is noted that the reference clearly teaches of depositing a coating onto a substrate. It is the examiner's position that the reference teaches depositing a film onto a portion of the substrate albeit the entire substrate. Regardless, one skilled in the art would realize that given a successful teaching of depositing a coating onto an entire substrate, the same could be done to a portion of the substrate, depending on the particular application. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to deposit a coating onto a portion of the substrate given the teaching above and for the reasons indicated.

The limitations of claims 2, 5, 8-15 have been addressed above.

In claims 3, 4, 6-7, 16, the applicant requires a specific deposition rate and DC voltage. The deposition rate is a result of other parameters including temperature, pressure and excitation energy such as voltage. These parameters are varied depending on the quality of the film desired. A higher deposition rate can be achieved to save expense but at the risk of increasing blemishes in the final product. It is well settled that determination of optimum values of cause effective variables such as these process parameters is within the skill of one practicing in the art.

Quadri et al. (5,800,934) discloses a method of depositing zirconia and zinc oxide on a substrate by PVD at a vacuum of  $10^{-5}$  mm of mercury at a deposition rate of 1-2 A/sec (col.2 lines 8-13 and 30-40) and has been provided for additional information.
